ROYAL MAIL
Steam Packet
Company's Agency,
For British Columbia & Vancouver Island.
OFFICE, MACDONALD & CO., BANKERS,
Yates Street.
THE ATTENTION OF SHIPPERS and passengers is particularly directed to the superior facilities the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's Line affords for the speedy conveyance of Passengers, Goods and Passengers to and from England to British Columbia and Vancouver Island, in conjunction with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Vessels and the Panama Railroad.
The superiority of the accommodation and entertainment on board the Royal Mail Steamers, together with the time occupied on the passage between England and Aspinwall direct, being so much shorter than by any other route, and the moderate rate of passage money, render this Company's steamers the CHEAPEST AND MOST EXPEDITIOUS MEANS OF TRANSIT, for passengers or for the forwarding of Goods and Treasure from Aspinwall to Europe.
Under an arrangement with the PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP CO., Special and Bullion can be conveyed to London and Havre in France.
Further information on the subject of Freight and Passage Money will be furnished by the undersigned.

(ADVERTISEMENT.)
TO THE EDITOR OF THE BRITISH COLONIST:—SIR:
In reference to the extraordinary notice which appears in your paper of this morning, signed by "J.
W. Tripp," and dated from Sticken, the 8th August, inst., I beg to state on behalf of Mr. James T. Byrre, my co-partner, and myself, that the partnership formerly existing between us and the said J. W. Tripp was legally dissolved, so far as respects the said J.
W. Tripp, and on the following grounds, viz:
1st. That the said J. W. Tripp received certain moneys for time, sold on account of the partnership, without accounting to his co-partners for the same,
2nd. That he neglected his duties in the Eureka Works in San Juan Isle, and in the early part of June last left the same altogether, without appraising me or my co-partner of his intention so to do, at the same time he took with him a quantity of tools and provisions, our property.
3rd. That he obtained goods at Victoria in the name of the firm without paying for them, and took the same with him for his own benefit; and that he has not since returned; my partner and self having been compelled by law for such goods as improperly obtained by the said J. W. Tripp.
On these grounds counsel advised that a dissolution might legally be effected and which has been done accordingly. Any further interference by or on the part of the said J. W. Tripp, by himself or Agent, will cause them to be dealt with according to law.

Notice to the Public.
SAINEVAIN'S WINE BITTERS; OR California Vermouth.—These Bitters are obtaining a wide-spread celebrity in all parts of the State.
It is sufficient evidence of their great merit to observe the large quantities shipped by our principal Wine Merchants to every part of the country.
Sainevain, however, like all other manufacturers of new and valuable articles, has to contend with unscrupulous parties, who are introducing a spurious mixture purporting to be his Wine Bitters, which nearly compounds are put up in the same style of bottles, labels, etc., so as to pass for the Sainevain brand. We call attention to this fact so that our citizens may be upon their guard, and that when they ask for Sainevain's Bitters, see that they get them. As pure Wine is destined to drive from use all alcoholic drinks, so these Bitters will soon take the place of the adulterated preparations which now flood our market. Those desiring a pure and agreeable tonic should try Sainevain's Wine Bitters or California Vermouth.
We have appointed W. H. OLIVER, of Victoria,
V. I., to be our Sole Agent for the British Possessions.

The New Real Estate Act.

The Bill to amend the Real Estate Tax Act of 1860, brought in by Mr. Cary, has reached a second reading, and it may, perhaps, be worth while for the public to know whether it is such a one as would be likely to meet with their approval when put in practice. Though on the whole it may be pretty well adapted to obtain the end sought to be gained by its enactment, still we cannot help remarking that there are some features in it which are not likely to meet with much favor from those who will have to pay taxes under its provisions. One cannot help being struck, for instance, with the evident desire there is apparent on the face of nearly every enactment in which there is any occasion for the appointment of officers, to throw the whole power and patronage into the hands of the Governor. This system of centralization has become almost as strong in this Colony as in the despotic Governments of Europe. The Governor is made the factotum in the way of official appointments. The principle is continued in the Bill, where, if any where, it ought to have no place. It is of the highest importance that a proper person—one having no connection with the Executive, should be appointed as assessor. He should stand between the Government and the people. We want no dependent upon Crown patronage to fix the value of our property according to the elastic scale prescribed by the Executive. We want no place-server who will make equal justice to all subservient to the private interests and wishes of those in power. The people have to pay the taxes, and it is only just that they should have something to say in choosing the officers who are to decide in what proportions they are to pay. As matters exist in this Colony at present, there is no one responsible for the appointment of any person to a Government office but the Governor himself. The principle of responsibility—one of the most beautiful features of British parliamentary institutions—is completely ignored in our system of government. We might as well be under the Czar of Russia for all the benefit we derive from it. That being the case, the country has a right to insist that no power of appointing Assessors be given to the Governor by any act of the Legislative Assembly until such time as the principle of ministerial responsibility be fully recognized and carried out by our Government. It is not likely, as long as all the patronage of officers resides in the hands of the Governor alone, and the funds are freely supplied by the people, that much change of conduct can be expected. The elections are now not very far off. The days of some at least of our present members are numbered. They are now in the "sere and yellow leaf." "A vote! a vote! a place for a vote!" will soon be the cry. All that official pressure can do will be done to secure the return of dead-weights and time-servers, who will be content to sit in our House of Assembly like so many automatons to be put through set movements by the Chief Manager. Then the value of placemen will become apparent.

It does not appear that the Legislature in this new Bill have any intention of making any distinction between absentees and resident land-owners. No better opportunity could occur than the present for attempting to make some provision by which absentees might be made to contribute something more than equal taxes with those who remain on the island. We have advocated the introduction of such a change in previous numbers of this paper, and we have still to repeat that it is a gross injustice to suffer men residing elsewhere, but owning land here, to reap the benefit in the improved value of their property, derived from the presence and labour of those who bear the brunt of the hardships attendant on reducing a new country to something like civilization. We dare say that most of our readers can point out instances within their knowledge where tracts of land are owned by men living in California or England, who have made little or no improvements upon them, but are waiting till time and the exertions of residents shall have so increased the value of their property as to make it worth their while to look after it. Now who is there that does not see what a drag such a state of things must be upon the progress of a young country? Instead of being resident consumers and producers, adding by their presence to the wealth of the island, they live abroad, they spend their money abroad, they give other countries the benefit of their labor and skill, and, not only that, in many instances they help to draw money out of the country in the shape of rents. Why can't the principle of taxing absentees to make up for loss occasioned by their living abroad be introduced. There is no unfairness in it. It is only an act of justice to those who remain here to build our Colony by their money, their labor, and their intelligence.

We think that clause requiring the Assessor, before the completion of his roll, to transmit by post to every person named therein, whose place of abode is known to the Assessor, a notice of the actual value at which his real estate has been assessed, and the amount to be paid, is open to serious objection. If this were a country in which post offices were within reach of every man, it might not make much difference, but how are men to get letters in the outer districts where there are scarcely roads, let alone a post office? Must a man keep constantly coming to Victoria for notices from the Assessor, or run the risk of being improperly taxed without his knowledge? Why not make it obligatory on the Assessor to have the notice served personally whenever the place of residence within the colony can be known? As it is now notices might as well be dispensed with altogether, as not one in ten is likely to get them until it is too late.

With regard to the Court of Revision, could it not be fixed by the Act for some certain day in the year that everybody could be sure of whether he lived with the reach of newspapers or post-offices or not, and could regulate himself accordingly. There is no necessity for leaving it to be arranged by the Sheriff, perhaps in one month, one year, and in another the next, till no one knows where to find it, unless perchance he sees the public journals, which very many are not in the way of doing.

CITY ORDINANCES.
Ordinance on Nuisances.
WE, THE MAYOR AND COUNCILLORS in Council convened, by virtue of the power and authority vested in us by an act entitled "An Act to incorporate the City of Victoria," passed the second day of August, A. D. 1862, and in the twenty-sixth year of the reign of Her Most Gracious Majesty, Queen Victoria; and, whereas, it is expedient for the good government of the city:
Section 1. Therefore be it ordained that from and after the passing of this ordinance, no slaughter house, tannery, distillery, or other offensive trade or occupation, shall be conducted in any premises situated within the limits of the said city, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 2. That no person shall ride or drive through the public streets at a pace exceeding eight miles per hour, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 3. No person shall lead or drive any horse or cattle on any sidewalk or footpath not proper therefor, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 4. All pigs and goats found at large within the city limits, shall be deemed a nuisance, and impounded; and the owner shall forfeit for each sterling, and in default of payment of the said penalty, the pigs and goats so impounded shall, after the expiration of seven days, be sold by order of the presiding officer.
Sec. 5. No person shall wantonly fire or set off or discharge any guns, pistols, cannons, squibs, crackers, or fireworks, of any kind or description, nor shall wear or carry on the person any loaded firearms or dangerous weapons, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds sterling for each offence.
Sec. 6. No person shall interrupt any of the foot-paths or sidewalks by placing thereon any boxes, bales, barrels, merchandise or articles of any description beyond a period of six hours, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 7. During the erection or repair of build-ings, no person shall occupy more than one-third of the width of the street, or fail to put up a fence round the works, and keep lights burning at night in the street near such buildings, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds sterling for each offence.
Sec. 8. No person shall throw or deposit on any of the foot-paths, side-walks, highways, thoroughfares, or any public place within the city limits, any rubbish, filth, ashes, or offal of any kind, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 9. No person or persons shall interrupt any highway or public thoroughfare within the city limits, by erecting thereon any fence build-ing, erective barricade, or obstruction of any nature or kind, under a penalty not exceeding ten pounds sterling for each offence.
Sec. 10. No person shall be allowed to dump any ashes, dirt, rubbish, stones, or filth of any kind whatsoever, into the harbor, or to play the same in such position that it may be washed into the Harbor, under a penalty, for the first offence, a sum not exceeding five pounds sterling; the second offence to be fined or imprisoned at the option of the Mayor or presiding officer.
Sec. 11. Every person who in any thoroughfare shall beat or shake any carpet, rug, or mat, except door-mats, after the hour of eight in the morning, or throw or lay any dirt, litter, or ashes, or any car-riage, fish, offal or rubbish, or throw or cause any such thing to go into any sewer-pipe, or drain, or into any well, stream, or water-course, or put the same in such a position that it may run into the harbor, or any pond, or reservoir, or water, or cause any offensive matter to run from any manufactory, brewery, slaughter-house, butcher's shop, or dunn-hill, or any uncovered place, whether or not surrounded by a wall or fence.
Every person who shall empty or begin to empty any privy within the hours of 6 in the morning and 12 at night, and in the case of the same, or cause any night-soil, soap leech, ammoniacal liquor, or other such offensive matter, between the hours of six in the morning and eight in the evening, and who shall at any time use for such purpose any cart or carriage not having a proper covering, or who shall wilfully or care-lessly slop or spill any such offensive matter in the removal thereof, or who shall not carefully sweep or clean away such place in which any such offensive matter shall have been placed, spilled, or slopped; and in default of the apprehension of the actual offender, the owner of the cart or car-riage employed for any such purpose shall be deemed to be the offender.
Sec. 12. No person shall injure any highway or public thoroughfare by running large bodies of water on to the same, so as to interrupt the travel thereon, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence.
Sec. 13. No person shall sink any privy, vault, or cesspool nearer than two feet to his neighbor's premises, and no less than two feet from the street, under a penalty not exceeding one pound sterling for each offence, and to be compelled to abate the nuisance under such penalty as the Mayor or presiding officer may direct.
TILOS HARRIS,
Mayor of the City of Victoria.
This 23d day of September, 1862.
ALGERNON AUSTIN, Town Clerk.

Ordinance to Regulate the Construction of Foot-paths.
WE, THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL-lors, in Council convened, by virtue of the power and authority vested in us by an Act of In-corporation, entitled "An Act to incorporate the City of Victoria," passed on the second day of August, A. D. 1862, and in the twenty-sixth year of the reign of Her Most Gracious Majesty, Queen Victoria.
Section 1. Be it ordained, that from and after the passing of this Ordinance, all owners of real estate fronting on the streets hereafter named, shall con-struct foot-paths of wood, stone, flagging, tiles, or bricks. The width of the foot-paths shall be one-third of the width of the street, and shall be the line of not more than one quarter of an inch to the foot, from the frontage of lots towards the street, and to be of uniform grade.
Sec. 2. If the foot-paths are constructed of wood the planking shall not be less than one and a half inches thick, and securely nailed to four by four inch, or three by six inch joists.
Sec. 3. Provided always, that three-fifths of the owners of subdivisions of any blocks between street and street may petition the Council to have the foot-paths fronting their property reduced to any width not less than six feet.
Sec. 4. Foot-paths already constructed shall be made to conform to this Ordinance as the Council may direct.
Sec. 5. All foot-paths shall be kept in good repair by the owners of the property fronting the same.
Sec. 6. Foot paths to be constructed on the follow-ing named streets, and on all streets within the limits of the same:
Commencing at the corner of Esquimalt and Store street, up Esquimalt to Douglas street; along Douglas to Yates street; along Yates street to Blanchard street; along Blanchard street to Fort street; along Rae to Douglas street; along Douglas to Humboldt street; up Humboldt to Rupert street; from Douglas, on Humboldt, to Government street; along Govern-ment to Fort street; along Fort street to Government street; along Wharf to Store street; to place of begin-ning.
Sec. 7. Parties failing to comply with this Ordi-nance within sixty days from the publication of the same, the Council shall advertise in the public news-papers for (five days) soliciting tenders for the per-formance of the work, and shall let out the same to the lowest respon-sible bidder, who shall execute a bond with two or more sureties for the faithful per-formance of the work.
Sec. 8. After the Contractor shall have performed his contract satisfactorily, the Council shall make the assessment to cover the amount due, in conformity to the preceding provisions of this Ordinance. The amount shall briefly refer to the contract, the work per-formed, the amount due, the rate per foot front, the amount of each assessment, the name of the owner of each lot, and the number of each lot or portion of lot assessed.
Sec. 9. The assessment thus made shall have at-tached to it a warrant, signed by the Mayor. Such warrant to hold until the contractor has executed the assign-ments to demand and receive the several assess-ments, and on this warrant the contractor may sue the parties so assessed at any time after thirty-five days, in any Court having jurisdiction of the amount.

Cowichan and Comox Meeting

A meeting was held last evening in a room over the Victoria Theatre, respecting further settlement in the Cowichan and Comox Districts. About 300 persons attended. Mr. S. Franklin, M. P., in the chair, made a few remarks, after which Mr. Cary rose and said that he had called them together in order that those now in the country who wished might take up land, and to explain that he was anxious to see the rich and fertile valley of Comox in the possession of settlers who were willing and anxious to bring it under cultivation. It was his intention to have a book at his office in which they might register their names; and if 60 or 70 persons came forward he would promise that another expedition should start similar to the one that went a few weeks ago to Cowichan. Each single settler might take up a hundred acres of land; if he had a wife, 150; and ten more for each of his children. They would have to pay $1 per acre; but no instalment would be required till after the land had been surveyed, and that would be done when a majority of the settlers required it. They would not be allowed to let or lease any land till 10s improvement per acre had been made. He then stated that there was still more land to be taken up in the Cowichan District, and invited all anxious to settle in the country to come forward for information, which should be supplied "free, gratis."

THE RUNAWAY CONTRACTOR.—It is asserted that Oppenheimer, the absconding contractor, is indebted to from four to five hundred of the workmen on his road in sums reaching in the aggregate, $50,000. The loss will fall most heavily on these poor men, who have worked several months without receiving more than a medium of the wages due—holding on upon the strength of promises made that so soon as an advance from the Government was obtained their claims would be satisfied. The advance was obtained several weeks ago, and what has become of the money only the contractors and those who are "in" with him can tell. We heard it asserted yesterday that Government will lose £100,000 by this swindle, but we hardly believe it possible that they could have been so much duped as to advance money for work never performed. We still incline to the opinion expressed yesterday that Government has the best of the bargain and that the sufferers will be the laborers and a few merchants. Agents for Victoria creditors here started for British Columbia to see what can be saved from the effects left behind by the contractor. An agent of Government has also been dispatched to the river.

THE RULE OF THE ROAD.—The Town Council has decided that horses and vehicles driven through the streets must keep to the left side of the road except when passing others, when they must "switch off" and go to the right. The penalty for each infraction of this ordinance is £5, to be collected in a summary manner. As they say in England

"The rule of the road is a paradox quite, In riding or driving along, If you go to the left you are sure to be right; If you go to the right, you are wrong."

LATER FROM THE RIVER.—The steamer Enterprise arrived from New Westminster last evening with 35 passengers and about $20,000 in treasure. The news from the upper country is unimportant. No new strikes made. Flour has declined to 26 28 cents per pound at the Forks of Quennebec. Stores full of goods and but few buyers. Every description of merchandise selling at a low figure. Stores at Yale and Lillooet also full to overflowing, and packers are turning out their animals for the season.

SALE OF A STEAMER.—The favorite steamer Eliza Anderson was yesterday sold to Captain John T. Wright, Jr., for the sum of $35,000. Captains Fleming and Bradford have disposed of their entire interest. She will run as usual on the Sound, and between this port and New Westminster. The steamer is almost four years old, and is considered a bargain at the figure named.

BENEFIT OF MISS LOTTA.—This charming little actress, than whom a more pleasing and versatile young lady has never appeared on the stage here, will take a benefit at the theatre to-night. Miss Lotta will dance her celebrated "Ethiopian Jig," sing several sweet ballads, and introduce many new features. We hope to see a full house.

FOR AUSTRALIA.—The ship Cyclone has been chartered by A. F. Main & Co. to carry the Australian immigrants back home. About two hundred persons are expected to take passage for that country.

LOOK TO YOUR STOVEPIES.—Now that the season for fire-building has commenced, citizens should look well to their stovepipes, lest from some defect a serious conflagration should ensue.

JEWISH NEW YEAR.—Last evening was the commencement of the Jewish New Year and the last of the ten days of atonement.

MUTINEERS.—The four, Tynemouth mutineers have been sentenced to two months imprisonment with hard labor and a forfeiture of £3 12s. wages each.

ARRIVED.—The bark Rival, fourteen days from San Francisco, with an assorted cargo to St. Ours & Co., arrived yesterday afternoon.

DISCHARGED.—Mrs. Moses, the would-be suicide, was yesterday fined the costs of arrest and discharged from custody.

The little schooner Harriet will sail to-day for San Francisco.

It is expected that gas will be lighted on Monday next, for the first time in this city.

The ship Cyclone was yesterday towed into the harbor by the steamer Otter.

The ship Lockett was yesterday towed out of the harbor by the steamer Otter.

The steamer Caledonia left for New Westminster yesterday morning.

A HINT TO CINDERELLA.—When whitening is used for the purpose of cleaning hearthstones or door-steps, it will not come off so easily if mixed with milk.

Debate in the Assembly on the Nominal Salary Resolution.

In the House of Assembly on Tuesday, 23d inst., Mr. Trimble's resolution "That an address be presented to His Excellency the Governor, praying that a nominal salary be paid to Her Majesty's representative in this House," was taken up, Mr. Tolmie in the chair.

Mr. Trimble, in rising to move the adoption of the resolution, stated his reasons for bringing forward the measure. He had consulted a legal gentleman on the subject, and had been informed that the Franchise Act of 1860 had no binding effect upon a member of the House appointed to a position without salary. If the House had a Minister receiving a salary, he would be expected to do his duty, and if he did not, the House would have the power of dismissing him. No reflection was intended to be cast on the Attorney General; but he believed that the Attorney General was not in the secrets of the Government, and a Minister was wanted who would understand everything going on behind the scenes, and furnish explanations when asked to do so. The Upper House was filled with the nominees of the Government [Order, by the Chair], and it was impossible, as matters stood, to have a vote of want of confidence in any Minister of the Government. The honorable gentleman quoted from a statute of Queen Anne, stating that where a Minister received an appointment, he must vacate his seat and go before his constituents for re-election; and concluded by saying that if the Minister in the House was granted a salary, he would be directly under the control of the House, and information on many subjects, which was not now forthcoming, would then be obtainable by the asking.

Mr. Ring said he did not rise to second the resolution. He believed that there should be some person in the House to answer all questions that might be put to him; but as to a salary, that was quite a different matter; he would not give one. The duties of a Minister were no doubt arduous and disagreeable, and were a great tax on the Attorney General [hear], and he therefore thought that the point would be met if some member of the Council were sent down to give answers. There must be some organ through which the wishes of the House could be conveyed to the Executive; but he was opposed to a nominal salary for such organ, or any salary at all.

Mr. Cary read a letter from His Excellency to the House, authorizing the Attorney General to give such information as the House might from time to time require concerning the course of the Government; and said that if any question which had been asked remained at present unanswered, it arose from a want of clerical aid to furnish the necessary information, or the pressure of public and private business upon him, and not from a lack of desire to furnish the required information on the part of either the Minister or the Government. As regarded a salary, he would scorn to do the duties for pay. No amount of money would compensate him for the onerous duties which he was daily called on to perform. Look at the miserable state of the colonial finances—look at the calls on government for money from all sides, and why rush into additional expenditure by granting additional salary where none was required? No person possessed of a particle of spirit would take pay for such drudgery as he performed—no man with any respect for himself would do it. It was perfectly competent for the House to express a want of confidence in him if not satisfied, and no person with any self-respect would remain after the passage of such a vote.

Mr. Ring asked if it could not be so arranged that the heads of departments might come into the House whenever requested and give information on matters connected with their several departments.

Mr. Cary replied that all information now required from them was handed to him by the heads of departments, and by him laid before the House.

Mr. Burnaby thought that the Governor's letter to the House was extremely vague, and did not place the Attorney General in the position of an accredited Minister. The nominal salary was to compel any future Minister to appeal to the people to confirm his appointment as Minister in the House; but he was hardly prepared to vote for the measure now. It must come before the House before long in the form of a constitutional measure, and it was for this House to decide whether it was prepared to grapple with that great question now. He thought not.

Mr. Franklin regarded the proposition as both important and honest. It was the stepping-stone for the establishment in this Colony of Responsible Government. The House might, had it a responsible Minister, always find out what was going on in the Legislative Council, the deliberations of which were now nearly as a sealed book. It would be well for the country if responsible government prevailed throughout the entire governmental machinery, but the measure proposed he thought premature.

Mr. Helmcken said the honorable member insulted every member around the table by asserting that the House was filled with the nominees of the Government.

Mr. Trimble—I said the Upper House was so constituted.

Mr. Helmcken—Oh! the Upper House. Then I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon. The point sought to be attained by the resolution is that the person who holds the position of representative of the Government in this House shall go before his constituents for re-election. The reason he had not done so already was that he received no salary. He thought it but right that the Minister should go before his constituents and ask if they would allow him to accept the appointment. Things should assimilate as much as possible to what they are in the old country, and the Minister would not be near so independent if liable to be re-elected;—he would not be so liable to give way to infirmity of temper nor to use bad language on certain occasions [laughter]. He did not say that there had been any exhibition of bad temper in this House by the Minister [laughter]; he did not say that he had ever used bad language; but such things might occur at some future time [renewed laughter]. There was nothing like personality in the resolution, and its passage might prove of great advantage to the future House. The country was not prepared for Responsible Government [hear, hear]. It had no lands. The Government should, of course, be as constitutional as possible; step by step it must be fashioned, and if this resolution passed something else would grow on top of it [laughter]. He would support the resolution because it was a step in the right direction, and because it brought the House in the direction of constitutional government.

With respect to the word "grant" contained in the resolution, he would amend so as to alter it to "request" or "allow."

Mr. Cary asked why not simply request that any person accepting the appointment of Minister should vacate his seat?

Mr. Ring moved an amendment that an address be presented to the Governor requesting the Colonial Secretary and the Colonial Treasurer to come into the House, upon due notice being given them, and answer such questions touching their departments as might be put them.

Mr. Foster did not know whether the resolution was seconded or whether it required it; but believed that capable gentlemen would be found to fill the position and furnish information without a salary. Once get the wedge of a "nominal salary" in, it would be pulled out and driven through to the other side. He would not vote for the measure. If any gentleman accepted the position and refused to give information when asked, his reputation would stand a good chance of being destroyed. He did not believe that the hon. mover wished for a paid member.

Mr. Cary urged the passage of his substitute, and it was finally unanimously decided to authorize a bill requiring any person appointed as the representative of the Government in this House to resign and go before his constituents for re-election.

To the Public.

In consequence of the large addition to our population within the last few days, by the arrival of several emigrant-bearing ships, considerable difficulty has been experienced by the new-comers in obtaining lodgings, at a reasonable time, to enable them to secure their means, until employment could be found. This fact having come to the knowledge of the "Immigration Board," I am desired to express their assurance of support to any of their enterprising fellow-citizens who may be induced to undertake, as an investment, the erection of a wooden structure for the accommodation of say about 60 or 70 people, having a mess-room in the center, with dormitories at either end; the inmates paying weekly rent, themselves finding mess.

As a speculation, such an undertaking is bound to succeed, whilst it would assist the efforts of the Board, and confer a real boon on the immigrant.

By order of the Board,
GEORGE GRAHAM,
Registrar.

Victoria, Sept. 25th, 1862.

A French Wolf.

The neighborhood of Montpelier—a small town about twelve miles from Lyons, on the road to Geneva—enjoys a traditional ill repute. Across the plain of Valbonne, on which it stands, may be seen the glimmer of two white houses—the Great and Little Dangerons—so called from having been in former days the scene of many deeds of lawless violence. The country around is broken, sparsely inhabited, and dotted with patches of dense and sombre woodland, sometimes reaching almost to the dimensions of forests. A better locality no robber could desire.

Now, for six years, dating from February, "fifty-five," the ancient bad reputation of this precinct had been re-assumed. On the 28th of February, "fifty-five," some sportsmen threading the thickets of Montaverne, came upon the corpse of a young female, covered with blood, which had preceded from six terrible wounds in the head and face. The body was stripped, and had been subjected to gross outrage. A handkerchief, collar, black lace cap, and a pair of shoes, were picked up close at hand. By the aid of these things the deceased was soon identified as Marie Badey, late a servant at Lyons, which city she had quitted three days before. She had stated as the reason for her departure, that a man from the country had offered her a good situation in the neighborhood, provided she could take it at once. Precisely similar proposals had been made on the very same day, to another servant girl, Marie Cart; the agent being a country-looking man, aged about fifty, and having a noticeable scar or swelling on the upper lip. Marie Cart postponed her answer until the 4th of March; a circumstance which probably induced the suspected person to address himself, in the interim, to Marie Badey.

On the fourth of March the same man called upon Marie Cart, who finally declined his offer, but introduced him to a friend of hers, Olympe Alabert—also a servant—who, tempted with what she considered an advantageous proposal, closed with it, and left Lyons under the guidance of the supposed countryman. Night was falling as they entered the wood of Montaverne, in which, a few days before, the body of Marie Badey had been found. Acting on a sudden impulse, the girl quitted her conductor, and sought refuge in a neighboring farm.

At this point—strange as it seems, considering on what a stratum of crime they had touched—the discoveries of the police ended for that time.

In the month of September following, a man, answering in every point to the former description, induced a girl, named Josephy Charlety, to accompany him to a pretended situation as a domestic servant, and both left the city together. Their way lay through cross roads; until, night coming on, the girl—like Olympe Alabert—oppressed with a nameless terror, fled into the nearest house.

On the thirty-first of October, the wolf again visited the fold, and selected Jeanne Bourgeois, another servant girl. But once more an opportune misgiving saved the intended prey. In the succeeding month, the wolf made choice of Victorine Perin; but, on this occasion, being crossed by some travelers, it was the wolf who took to flight, carrying with him the girl's trunk, containing all her clothes and money. None of these incidents seem to have provoked much attention from the authorities, and the horrible deeds in course of commission were only brought to light by the almost miraculous escape of another proposed victim, Marie Pichon.

On the twenty-sixth of May, '61, at eleven o'clock at night, a woman knocked wildly at the door of a farm, in the village of Balan, demanding help against an assassin. Her bruised and wounded face, torn garments, shoeless feet, all bore testimony to the imminence of the danger from which she had escaped. Conducted to the brigade of gendarmes, at Montpelier, she made the following statement, listened to at the subsequent trial with breathless interest:—"To-day, at two o'clock, I was crossing the bridge La Guillotiere, at Lyons, when a man I had not before observed, but who must have been following me, plucked my dress and asked me if I could tell him in what street the Servant's Office was situated? I mentioned the latter, adding that I myself was about to visit the place? 'Yes,' 'Then,' said he, 'I have just the thing to suit you. I am a gardener at the chateau near Montpelier, and my mistress has sent me to Lyons with positive orders to bring back a house servant, cost what it may.' He enumerated the advantages I should enjoy, and said that the work would be very light, and the wages two hundred and fifty francs, beside many Christmas-boxes. A married daughter of his mistress paid her frequent visits, and left five francs on the mantelpiece for the maid. He added that I should be expected to attend mass regularly."

"The appearance, language and manner of the man gave me so strong an impression of good faith, that, without a minute's hesitation, I accepted his offer, and we accordingly left by the train, which arrived at Montpelier about midnight—half past seven. Placing my trunk upon his shoulder, he desired me to follow, saying we had now a walk of an hour and a half, but that, by taking cross-paths, we could quickly reach our destination. I carried in one hand a little box, in the other my basket and umbrella. We crossed the railway, and walked for some distance along the parallel road, when the man turned suddenly to the left and led me down a steep descent, skirted on both sides by thick bushes. Presently he faced round, saying that my trunk fatigued him, that he would conceal it in a thicket and come back for it in a carriage on the morrow. We then abandoned the path altogether, crossed several fields, and came to a copse, in which he hid the trunk, saying we should presently see the chateau. After this, we traversed other fields, twice passing over places that looked like dried up water-courses, and, finally, through very difficult ways, rather scrambling than walking, arrived at the summit of a little hill.

"I must mention something that had attracted my attention. Throughout the walk my guide seemed remarkably attentive, constantly cautioning me to mind my steps, and assisting me carefully over every obstacle. Immediately after crossing the hill I spoke of, his movements began to give me uneasiness. In passing some vines he tried to pull up a large stone. It, however, resisted his efforts, and as I was following close on his heels, he did not persevere. A little further, he stooped down and seemed to be endeavoring to pick up one of the large stones that lay about. Though now seriously alarmed, I asked with all the indifference I could command, what he was looking for? He made an unintelligible reply, and presently repeated the maxim, 'Again I inquired what he was looking for—had he lost anything?' 'Nothing, nothing,' he replied, 'it was only a plant I intended for my garden.' Other singular movements kept me in a state of feverish alarm. I observed that he several times lagged behind, and whenever he did so, moved his hands about under his blouse as though in search of a weapon. I was frozen with terror. Run away I durst not, for I felt he would pursue me; but I constantly urged him to lead the way, assuring him I would follow."

"In this way we reached the top of another small hill, on which stood a half-built cottage. There was a cabbage garden, and a good wheel-road. My very fear now gave me the necessary courage. I resolved to go no further, and at once said 'I see you have led me wrong. I shall stop here.' Hardly had the words left my mouth when he turned sharply round, stretched his arms above my head, and let fall a cord with a running noose. We were at this moment almost in contact. Instinctively I let fall everything I carried, and with both hands seized the man's two arms, pushing him from me with all my strength. This movement saved me. The cord, which was already round my head, only caught and pulled off my cap. I shrieked out, 'My God! my God! I am lost!'

"I was too much agitated to observe why the assassin did not repeat his attack. All I recollect is, that the cord was still in his hand. I caught up my box and umbrella, and flew down the hill. In crossing a little ditch, I fell and bruised myself severely, and losing my umbrella. Fear, however, gave me strength. I heard the heavy steps of the murderer in pursuit, and was on my legs again in an instant, running for life. At that moment, the moon rose above the trees on my left, and I saw the glimmer of a white house on the plain. Toward this I flew, crossing the railway, and falling repeatedly in my headlong course. Soon I saw lights. It was Balan. I stopped at the first house. A man ran out, and I was saved."

Such was Marie Pichon's narrative. The authorities, now fully aroused, at once commenced a searching inquiry. Ultimately, the eye of justice rested on a certain small house in the little hamlet of DuMollard. Village gossip spoke unreservedly of the skulking nocturnal habits of its master—the stern unsocial manners of his wife. Their names were the same as that of the village—DuMollard—a very common name in that district. The man had a peculiar scar or tumor on his upper lip.

The magistrate at once waited upon DuMollard, and requested an explanation of the employment of his time on the day and night of the twenty-sixth of May. The answers being evasive, and certain articles in the house wearing a very suspicious look, DuMollard was given into custody, conveyed to Trevoux, and instantly identified by Marie Pichon as her assailant. Meanwhile a search in his house resulted in the discovery of an immense accumulation of articles, evidently the produce of plunder—clothes, linen pieces of lace ribbons, gowns, handkerchiefs, shoes, in a word, every species of articles that might have belonged to girls of the servant class. Very many of these bore traces of blood; others had been roughly washed and hung out. These objects amounted in all to twelve hundred and fifty. "The man must have a channel somewhere," said one of the searchers.

It was next ascertained that, in November, 1858, DuMollard was seen to alight one evening at the station of Montpelier, accompanied by a young woman, whose luggage he deposited in the office, saying that he would call for it the next day. It was never claimed.

"On the night you mean," said the wife of DuMollard—who, after the search in the house, had been likewise taken into custody, and now showed a disposition to confess—DuMollard came home very late, bringing a silver watch and some blood-stained clothes. He gave me the latter to wash, only saying, in his short way, 'I have killed a girl in Mountain wood, and am going back to bury her.' He took his pickaxe and went out. The next day he wanted to claim the girl's baggage, but I dissuaded him from doing so."

In order to verify this statement, the magistrates, on the 31st of July, 1861, repaired to Mountain wood, taking with them the two accused. For some hours all their searches proved fruitless, the woman declaring her inability to point out the precise spot, and the man preserving a stolid silence. At length some appearance of a tumultuous was detected among the bushes, and a few strokes of the pickaxe made visible some bones. A circular trench was then carefully dug, and a perfect female skeleton uncovered. The skull presented a frightful fracture. Under it was found some brown hair and a large double hair-pin.

The prisoners were now brought forward and confronted with the silent witness. The woman having volunteered further confession, the party now proceeded to the wood Communes, also near Montpelier; but, night coming on, investigation was deferred till next day. A great part of the next day was passed in fruitless search, when, just as the party were preparing to return to Montpelier, with the view of organizing explorations on a larger scale, DuMollard suddenly declared that he would himself point out the place they sought.

He then pointed them to a spot about fifty yards in the woods. Here they labored for another hour, with no better success, until one of the officers noticed a slight displacement of the soil, presenting some small fissures, whence flies were issuing. Above this spot two little shrubs, evidently planted by design, had taken feeble root.

The corpse lay on its back, the left hand on the bosom, the fingers clutching a clod of earth. Appearance favored the frightful conclusion that the victim had been buried while yet alive and conscious.

THE ENGLISH ARMY AT WATERLOO.—What is truly admirable in the battle of Waterloo is England—English firmness, English resolution, English blood; the superb thing which England had there—may it not displease her—is herself. It is not her Captain, it is not her army. Wellington, strangely ungrateful, declared, in a letter to Lord Bathurst, that his army, the army that fought on the 18th of June, 1815, was a "delectable army." What does this dark assemblage of bones, hurled beneath the furrows of Waterloo, think of that?

England has been too modest in regard to Wellington. To make Wellington so great, is to belittle England. Wellington is but a hero like the rest. These Scotch Grays, these Horse Guards, these regiments of Maitland and of Mitchell, this infantry of Pack and Kempt, this cavalry of Ponsonby and of Somerset, these Highlanders, playing the bagpipe under the storm of grape, the e battalions under Ryland, the raw recruits who hardly knew how to handle a musket, holding out against the veteran bands of Eastling and Rivoli—all that is grand. Wellington was tenacious, that was his merit, and we do not undervalue it, but the least of his foot soldiers, or his horsemen was quite as firm as he. The iron soldier is quite as good as the Iron Duke. For our part all our glorification goes to the English soldier, the English army, the English people. If trophy there be, to England the trophy is due. The Waterloo column would be more just if, instead of the figure of a man, it lifted to the clouds the statue of a nation.

But this great England will be offended at what we say here. She has still after her 1688 and her 1789, the feudal illusion. She believes in hereditary right, and in the hierarchy. This people, surpassed by none in might and glory, esteems itself as a nation not as a people. So much so that as a people they subordinate themselves willingly, and take a Lord for a head. Workmen, they submit to be despised; soldiers, they submit to be whipped. We remember that at the battle of Inkermann a sergeant, who, as it appeared, had saved the army, could not be mentioned by Lord Raglan, the English military hierarchy not permitting any hero below the rank of officer to be spoken of in report.—Victor Hugo in "Les Miserables."

CHOOSING A WIFE.—Choosing a wife is a perilous piece of business. A wife should be selected on the same principle as a calico gown. Bright colors and patterns are not always the best economy. Nothing like the sun and showers of matrimony to bleach out deceptive externals. Don't choose the treasure by gaslight, or in a parlor sitting. Broad daylight is the best time. Bear in mind, sir, the article once bargained for, you can't exchange it if it don't suit. If you buy a watch, and it don't run as you expected, you can send it to a jeweller to be repaired; in the case of a wife, once paired, you can't repair. She may run in the wrong direction—very well, sir; all that is left for you is to run after her, and an interesting chase you will probably find it. If you get a good wife, you will be the happiest fellow alive; if you get a bad one, you may as well sell yourself for two and sixpence at once! Just as well to consider all things beforehand, young man.

O HEAVEN!—A lover of statistics has, according to the last number of the Theater Archie, counted how often the exclamation "O Heaven!" occurs in Scribner's pieces. In the Feve d'Eau he found it 25 times; in La Chaine, 18 times. Adding up the number in the other comedies, operas, and operettas, he calculated the words by lines, and found that the exclamation "O Heaven!" has brought the poet just 30,000 francs.

GLADSTONE AND SHAKESPEARE.—Mr. Gladstone, the British Chancellor of Exchequer, was caught the other day in a shower of rain, and a sudden gust of wind blew his umbrella inside out; upon which, in reproachful accents, he murmured "I tax not you, elements!"

Queen Victoria has contributed, under the title of the Duchess of Lancaster, £2000 to the fund for the distressed cotton operatives of Lancaster. She assumes her dual title "to associate herself with this suffering district."

If you cannot inspire a woman with love of you, fill her above the brim with love of herself—all that runs over will be yours.

GOOD NEWS!—The GIRLS HATE ARRIVED! and A. J. BRUNN has reduced the price of his well-selected stock of fashionable clothing, shirts, hats, caps, and furnishing goods. See advertisement.

CARD.
SIR—In order to counteract a report which has been circulated, that I am not qualified for admission to the bar as an Attorney, I append an extract from a despatch from His Grace the Duke of Nassau, to His Excellency Governor Douglas, in reply to my petition to Her Majesty the Queen, which was signed by upwards of 100 of the leading inhabitants of Victoria, upwards of 20 Writers to the Signet, and Solicitors, before the Supreme Court of Scotland, the Members of Parliament for my native city, Edinburgh, and forwarded by the Lord Advocate, first law officer of the Crown for Scotland, and representative of the Scotch Bar in the House of Commons:
[Copy No. 85.]
DOWNS STREET, 7th February, 1862.
TO GOVERNOR DOUGLAS, C. B.
SIR—I have received your despatch No. 74 of the 7th of December, 1861.
MR. COPLAND HAS QUALIFIED HIMSELF BY STUDY IN SCOTLAND, FOR PRACTICE AS WRITER TO THE SIGNET.
I have, &c.,
(Signed) "NEWCASTLE."
I have further to add that upon my arrival here in December, 1859, I applied for admission to the bar, producing at the same time my certificate of 5 years clerkship to James Duncan, Esq., Writer to the Signet, and also Certificate of Examination by the Professor of Scotch Law in the University of Edinburgh. In January, 1859, I sent my first Petition to Her Majesty, through this Government, (which document I believe never reached England, as I never heard of it afterwards.) In January, 1861, I sent a second Petition, in duplicate, that is, one copy through this Government, and the other through the influential parties above mentioned.
The despatch of the 7th February has now been in these Government offices for upwards of three months, and, as my legal rights have not yet been accorded to me, it will shortly be my duty to make a fourth appeal to my Queen.

PROCLAMATION.
Vancouver Island.
COLONIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
8th August, 1862.
THE GOVERNOR, WITH THE ADvice of the Council, directs it to be notified:
That, to any person or persons who shall first discover a profitable Gold Field within the Colony of Vancouver Island, and make known and describe to the Colonial Government the site and limits of the tract of land comprised in his or their discovery, there shall be paid the sum of One Thousand Pounds sterling (£1000), provided the monies received for Licenses issued for working the said tract of land be equal to that amount; and provided always that there shall have been proved to the satisfaction of the local Government, that there has been some FIELD raised and produced from the said tract or field, within Six Months of the issue of the said Licenses, an amount of Gold equal in value to not less than Ten Thousand Pounds (£10,000).
By His Excellency's Command.
WILLIAM A. G. YOUNG.
